BPRD District Office Receives Design Award

The Bend Park & Recreation District Office, designed by Opsi Architecture and completed in 2009, received the award in the Government category of the 2011 Excellence in Design competition. Each year, Environmental Design & Construction magazine holds its Excellence in Design competition to honor projects that demonstrate a clear commitment to green building and sustainable design. The competition recognizes commercial, government, institutional, educational and residential projects meeting a variety of environmental building criteria.

The awards winners were announced online at www.EDCmag.com. The Bend Park & Recreation District building will be featured in greater detail in the October print issue.
